

David Jennings Elected Chairman of the Airports Council International-North America Commissioners' Committee

November 1, 2008

David Jennings, Chairman of the Charleston County Aviation Authority (CCAA), was elected Chairman of the Airports Council International-North America (ACI-NA) Commissioners' Committee at their annual conference and exhibition in Boston, MA. Mr. Jennings has been involved with the ACI-NA for over 25 years and served on the Commissioners' Committee for over four years. The Commissioners' Committee is comprised of the boards, commissions, and trustees of ACI-NA member airports. These officials oversee and set policy for the management of their airport organizations. The Committee's purpose is to share information and expertise among its members and to provide training and educational opportunities for its members. Service on the committee also gives the commissioners the opportunity to increase their knowledge of airport management and the aviation industry.

CCAA owns, operates, and maintains the Charleston International Airport, Charleston Executive Airport (Johns Island), and Mount Pleasant Regional Airport.
