

National Journal Recognizes Rosen, Rosen & Hagood for Use of Technology

June 3, 2004

The June/July issue of the nationally distributed journal, Law Office Computing has a feature article on Rosen, Rosen & Hagood's use of technology to improve service to clients.

The "techsetters" feature spotlights firms across the country that are attempting to make use of technology that improves service to clients.

"We are pleased to be selected for this national feature article" noted the firm's managing partner Alice Paylor. "We see the value of using the technology to improve our level of service to our clients" she added.
